

COVID-19 Update - April 22, 2020

Hi all-

It's another slow news day, but that isn't always a bad thing. Given the exceedingly long email last night, you're due a short one tonight.

Tonight, the update will be a simple thank you to the people who help make the trains run on time. Happy Administrative Professionals Day to all of our administrative staff. Administrative professionals' individual job descriptions are varied and diverse, but I think it's fair to say we all know they really run the show. For the people they support, they're critical to keeping them on time and in line, but they're also the "go to" for just about everyone else. I know I'd be lost without the people providing critical support to the director's office. Literally, I'd be lost. . .

Especially today, in such a challenging environment, administrative staff continue supporting their teams. One day of official recognition isn't enough, but thank you, Administrative Professionals, for the value you bring to IDOC!

Have a great night, stay safe, and take care of yourself.

Thanks-
Josh
